SPECIAL LIBRARIES MARK NLW

The Indiana Chapter of Special Libraries Association has selected as its annual demonstration project "Aging in Indiana: Special Libraries Contribution." Special Libraries throughout the state are developing interpretative publicity, exhibits, book lists, and other special activities timed around National Library Week, April 16-22. Record of activity and accomplishments will be entered in competition for the annual H. W. Wilson Award during the May 28-June 1 national conference of Special Libraries Association.

Demonstration Tool

The Indiana Chapter has chosen to develop as its demonstration tool the inter-library loan of books among public, college and university, and special libraries. The intention of this coordinated approach is to show that special library facilities extend and complement those of public libraries in highly specialized subject fields or in giving service to groups of users with highly specialized needs; that the various libraries work together to provide a complete range of library services to and for older adults.

The special librarians are working with the ILA-ILTA Committee on Services to Older Adults in relating special library service with public library service. Both the SLA Chapter and the ILA-ILTA Committee have worked closely with the Indiana Commission on Aging and Aged to define the various library service needs of the aging and aged, and of professional and lay workers concerned with the aged.

The various libraries are involved in many different ways. The public library thinks primarily of service to elders and to younger persons planning toward their retirement. The public library also gives service to those many readers of the community with personal, citizen, or professional concern for older people. However, the literature of highly specialized fields is much too voluminous and specialized for most public libraries, so becomes the province of the special library. Colleges and universities, especially those maintaining professional schools in such fields as medicine and health services, adult education, and social work, maintain in their libraries the highly specialized literature of the professions.

While each of the many libraries serves its own "public," few are able to fill all requests without at least occasional borrowing of specific books. Hence inter-library loan among the various libraries is often used when a public library patron requires a particular book on gerontology, when an industry starts a program on pre-retirement planning, or when a cabinet manufacturer wishes a book on architectural planning of small homes in a retirement community.

Project Plans

Though the SLA demonstration project leaves individual libraries to plan either separately or in groups their own activities, it is anticipated that the project as a whole will show how libraries give service to employees preparing for retirement, how members of various professions and specializations working with or for older people use library service, and how all libraries work with their patrons to provide service. Newspaper articles and other interpretative articles, including features in house organs, will be prepared, special reading lists and bibliographies will be compiled and distributed. Invitations will be issued to visit libraries, and special exhibits and book racks

INDIANA'S LILLY LIBRARY

Sheathed in Bedford stone, the Lilly Library at Indiana University, Bloomington, is a monument to man's search for knowledge. Here is a treasure house of rare books and manuscripts that all Hoosiers, and especially librarians, can look to with awe and pride. The 75,000 rare volumes and the 1,500,000 manuscripts is the richest storehouse of such materials in mid-America. These materials date from a 7th Century fragment of the New Testament laboriously done by a dedicated Latin scribe to the recent manuscript of Archibald MacLeish's prize winning play, "J.B."

The Lilly Library, dedicated last October 3, was named to honor the family of Eli Lilly, pioneer Indiana pharmaceutical manufacturer. The gift of Josiah Kirby Lilly, Jr., of his incomparable rare book collection to Indiana University in 1956 formed the nucleus collection for the new Library.

Forty Years to Collect

Mr. Lilly devoted over forty years to the careful assembling of his rare books, first editions, manuscripts and paintings. This was the largest gift of its kind ever made to a university.

The Lilly Library is a center of attraction for visitors to the campus. This handsomely appointed and up-to-date home for the university's special collections has something to appeal to every interest in the field of learning whether it be literature, medicine, geography, or religion. In addition to the Lilly Collection, the new library has at last provided a safe place for the rare volumes previously kept in the University's general library, which is not fireproof.

The Lilly Library, which is part of the University's library system, is headed by David A. Randall, expert in the field of rare books. Curator of special collections is Miss Geneva Warner.

Upon entering the Library the visitor finds himself in the Central Hall, in which changing exhibits are displayed. Done in walnut, the continuous, luminous ceiling reduces shadow to a minimum which allows the exhibits to be viewed with ease. To the left of the Central Hall is a lounge which also has wall space for exhibits. This room can readily be converted for lecture use.

Reading Room Use

The Library's Reading Room is located on the right of the Central Hall. Admission and exit from this room are controlled by the librarian in charge. Any student or faculty member of the University or any other qualified person has the privilege of using the room and the materials of the Lilly Library. The usual regulations on the use of rare books and manuscripts are observed.

Having gone through the Central Hall, one comes next to the Lincoln Room. The patterned damask on the walls of the Lincoln Room has been copied from a damask which hung in the White House during President Lincoln's occupancy. The floor and wood trim of the room is walnut. The furnishings of the room are of the Lincoln era. Included is a desk which was used by Mr. Lincoln in Springfield from 1841 to 1844.

The Lilly Room

The J. K. Lilly, Jr., Room is contemporary in design with woodwork and floor of teak. Prominent in the room is a portrait of Mr. Lilly which was painted by Donald Mattison of Indianapolis. Currently, selections from Indiana history and literature are being shown in this room.

March, 1961

The Lincoln Room honors this famous American who spent his youth in Southern Indiana.

This rustic room houses the Robert S. Ellison collection of Western Americana.

The design of the Poetry Room is Georgian, influenced by the English gentleman's library of the eighteenth century, with birch floor, butter-nut walls, three lovely chandeliers and a marble fireplace.

The Ellison Room

Lovers of the rustic style will find the Ellison Room to their taste. This room attempts to recapture the early days of the Western states and Colorado. Sand-blasted fir has been used throughout, with field stone for the fireplace and the exterior wall. The Ellison collection of Western Americana emphasizes original accounts of the plains and the Rockies. Over one hundred overland narratives are included in this collection and there is extensive coverage on early railroads and Indian life and wars.

On the second floor of the Library one finds the Wordsworth Room finished in bleached mahogany, a seminar room, and a gallery hall where portraits of literary men from Mr. Lilly's collection are hung.

Staff workrooms are located in the stacks which occupy seven levels at the rear of the building. The ultimate storage capacity of the building is in the neighborhood of 300,000 volumes and three million manuscripts. An unusual feature of the storage stacks is the inclusion of two separate bomb-proof vaults. With fireproof construction, constant humidity and temperature control, the best possible physical care is provided for the books and manuscripts.

At the present time the Library's hours are Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and 9:00 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturdays. A morning and afternoon tour are available during the open hours.

At the time of the dedication of the Lilly Library, Indiana University's President Herman B Wells made the following statement:

RARE BOOK TRAINING

Indiana University will launch an experimental three-year program to develop rare book librarians using the recently dedicated Lilly Library and its treasure of rare books and documents as a training center.

Two one-year $5000 fellowships will be awarded next July, supported by a grant from the Lilly Endowment, Inc., Indianapolis.

The program of study will be designed to familiarize the fellowship winners with bibliographical methods, the antiquarian book trade, and the organization and management of rare book and special collection departments or libraries.

Inquiries may be addressed to Miss Margaret Rufsvold, Director, Division of Library Science, Indiana University, Bloomington.

will be ready for the inspection of visitors. Many other devices will be developed by the ingenuity of Indiana librarians who tell the story of "Aging in Indiana: Special Libraries Contribution," and how the family of public, college, and special libraries work together to serve the aging.

"The citizens of the state will find here among the historic documents an inspiration akin to that of the students, a respect for the men and their works that have made possible the civilization which these citizens enjoy and the renewed courage to solve present and future problems as was done by those who have gone before."

by

Mrs. Mildred H. Lowell

Division of Library Science, Indiana University

The Small Libraries Group of the Indiana Library Association, in cooperation with the Division of Library Science of Indiana University, sponsored a Workshop from January 16 through 19, 1961, which was held at the Student Union Building on the I.U. Medical Center Campus in Indianapolis.

Forty-two members of the Group representing thirty-three different libraries participated in one or more sessions. In addition to these members, nine of the Indiana State Library staff came to the opening session and Marcelle Foote, head of the Extension Division, also participated in other sessions; Betty LeBus, president-elect of the Indiana Library Association attended two sessions; and five faculty members of the I.U. Division of Library Science provided instruction and counseling.

Idea Born

The idea for the Workshop came from the President of the Small Libraries Group, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Sutherlin, librarian of the Roachdale Public Library. At a meeting in November the officers of the Group—Mrs. Sutherlin, Mrs. Mildred Stahl, and Mrs. Lena T. Holtsclaw—outlined the subjects which they believed should be included in the Workshop program.

To ascertain the wishes of the Group, questionnaires were mailed out to all members on which each was to indicate her choice of subjects to be studied and whether or not she could attend. Book selection was the first choice, reference was second, and library administration and cataloging and classification tied for third choice. The program was then planned by Dr. Mildred H. Lowell, chairman of the Workshop, to include these subject areas.

Due to the illness of Mrs. Sutherlin, Mrs. Stahl presided at the opening session and Margaret I. Rufsvold, Director of the Division of Library Science, outlined the purposes and subjects of the Workshop. Faculty members from the Division of Library Science who served as leaders for the sessions were Margaret Sheviak, Maysel O. Baker, and Mrs. Lowell. Dr. Haynes McMullen was available one afternoon for conferences with those participants who had questions about certification requirements.

Sessions Varied

Miss Sheviak directed the sessions concerned with juvenile book selection aids, services to children and young adults, and the organization and administration of small public libraries. She gave the participants many useful and practical ideas about stimulating the use of library services, storytelling, time saving techniques, charging and registration systems, ordering of library materials, weeding and replacement, binding, prebinding, and rebinding.

Many practical and easily applied short cuts to accessioning, cataloging, and classifying were suggested by Miss Baker during one session. She prepared a six page manual "Cataloging Hints" which she distributed to the participants. The manual included examples of card forms, corporate entries, and lists of useful tools and aids.

Under the supervision of Dr. Lowell, forty-eight reference books, which had been brought to the Workshop from the Division of Library Science Library, were studied. Instruction in the selection and use of United States government publications was included in a session devoted to the consideration of free and inexpensive material for the vertical file.

One session was utilized in discussing the role of the librarian of a small public library in presenting and sponsoring book-centered programs in her library and community. The single title book talk, reviews of several books on different subjects, radio and television programs, and book review symposiums were included in the discussion. Examples of four different book-centered programs recorded on magnetic tape were played for the participants. Books and periodicals useful in selecting library materials for adults were shown and discussed.

Visits by Film

A total of eighteen motion pictures (furnished by the Indiana State Library) were shown during the three evening sessions. By means of these pictures, the participants "visited" the following libraries: Dallas Public Library, Library of Congress, Brooklyn Public Library, Louisiana State Library, Wilmette Public Library, Delhi (India) Public Library, Gary, Indiana, branches, service to shut-ins through the Cleveland Public Library, and county and regional service in Kentucky, Illinois, New York, Tennessee, and Alabama.

In addition, they also saw a film showing how World Book Encyclopedia is produced (furnished by Field Enterprises) and a film about binding, prebinding, and rebinding borrowed from The Heckman Bindery. The State Library also provided twenty-three filmstrips about various reference books which the participants viewed and studied.

It was a rewarding experience for the leaders to work with such eager, responsive, appreciative "students." The living accommodations offered by the Student Union Building contributed immeasurably to the success of the Workshop—comfortable, pleasant rooms, well-equipped meeting areas, and excellent, inexpensive food in the cafeteria. Eating together around large tables in the dining area afforded opportunity for getting better acquainted, to talk "shop," and to cement friendships.

Financial Arrangements

As a guide for trustees and librarians of the Small Libraries Group in planning for any future Workshops, the participants were questioned relative to what financial arrangements had been made for them to attend this meeting. All expenses were paid from their library budget for twenty-seven of the forty-two participants to attend this Workshop. Part of their expenses were paid from the library budget for five. A total of 32, or 76%, of the participants received part or all of her expenses. Twenty-eight participants indicated that their library budget was paying for a substitute to take her place while she was away.

During the opening session, Mrs. Stahl appointed the following Evaluation Committee: Mrs. Thelma R. Johnston, Kewanna-Union Township Library; Mrs. Edith Miller, Carnegie Library, Linden; Mrs. Vivian M. Myers, Francesville-Salem Township Library, Francesville; and Mrs. Marie Waggoner, Colfax Public Library.

At the final evaluation session, Mrs. Stahl summarized the Workshop and the members of the Evaluation Committee presented their reports. In the discussion following these reports, the participants requested (1) that the Division of Library Science sponsor a similar Workshop annually, (2) that each Workshop be held in a campus Student Union because they liked the atmosphere and facilities, and

"What I Gained from the Workshop"

by Five Participants

Editor's Note: The true evaluation of a new venture such as the recent Workshop for librarians of small public libraries can only be made by those who were the recipients of the instruction. In order to obtain a true cross section of opinion, five of the participating librarians gave their independent evaluations at the conclusion of the four day Workshop. Here we print these evaluations verbatim.

In writing this evaluation of the Small Library Group Workshop, I find it difficult to pick any one session as being of more value or interest than the others. I attended the Workshop expecting to learn and I have.

In the cataloging session I hoped to learn some short cuts, but some of the short cuts exceeded my expectations and I'm going home to think about discarding those dirty old accession books. Maybe I can live without them.

Actually using the reference books as we did in class (all 48 of them) seems to me to be the only way to get to know them. The many printed lists of guides and aids will be very helpful to us in the future. The films we viewed during the evening sessions, covering the many phases of library work and how it is being carried on in other states, were inspiring.

To me, the informal exchange of ideas, even at meal time, and the warm feeling of friendship I felt in the group helped to strengthen my belief that "Librarians are nice people."

I feel enough praise cannot be given our instructors and Indiana University for all their time and effort involved, and I think a special vote of thanks should be given Dr. Lowell's husband for helping to "lug" all of the materials from the University.

I'm sorry more librarians of small libraries couldn't attend, and I wonder if, perhaps, a 2-day session on only one or two subjects might be the answer.—Mrs. Mildred Stahl, Greenwood Public Library.

before I express my appreciation to those who have made it possible. So, a big vote of thanks to the officers of the Small Libraries Group, Miss Marcelle Foote of the State Library, and last, but not least, our instructors from Indiana University who have given much of their time to help us be better librarians.

It has been a pleasure and a privilege to attend this Workshop. It has been most constructive and I have gained much from each class.

In the small library a major portion of all responsibilities and work are mastered somehow by the librarian. So little time is taken for a refresher and, consequently, we become rather set in our way of doing things.

We learn to do by doing and Dr. Lowell approached her topic by having the group participate in the subject "Useful Reference Books" and "Free and Inexpensive Materials" for the vertical file. Dr. Lowell's evaluation on these books for the small library will be a great help to me. I hope to make the results show on the reference shelves.

In the business of cataloging one can become very outdated. Having sat in the class conducted by Miss Baker on "Simplified Cataloging and Classifying," main entry and subject headings, and, especially, the tools and short cuts, I have a greater understanding of what I can and can not do. I appreciate the sympathetic attitude toward the small library in regard to the time involved in doing things and the simplified methods suggested. I plan to start a record of "What" and "How" we do in our library for the benefit of my successor.

The selection and use of library materials and the aids suggested by Miss Sheviak and Dr. Lowell will, I am sure, help me to be more helpful.

It is utterly impossible to give my full evaluation of this workshop. I believe that

It is hardly fair for me to evaluate what I have gained by having attended this Workshop time and actual practice of the knowledge gained will make me a better-informed librarian. The knowledge seems boundless. I now have greater insight on how to do my work and much more confidence to get it done.

I recommend the workshop be made a yearly project. It seems to me the subjects would have to be changed but very little. I am especially interested in further information on the vertical file, a picture file and story hour.

This has truly been a world of information wrapped up in just four short days.—Mrs. Thelma Johnston, Kewanee-Union Township Library.

A workshop for librarians of small public libraries—how wonderful for me, a new librarian! It seemed almost made to order.

So many meetings include so much that does not apply to our situation, but in this workshop problems were considered that pertained to our size of library.

It was well-planned, well-organized and an inspiration to us all. I believe it was as comprehensive as is possible when so many different subjects are covered in a comparatively short time. The instructors were very gracious and helpful and gave us very valuable information. Their suggestions and ideas were practical and useful.

Especially helpful were the discussions of useful reference books, free and inexpensive materials for the vertical file (including "how to order government publications"), and suggestions for book talks and summer reading programs for children.—Mrs. Marie Waggoner, Colfax Public Library.

A great wealth of useful information has been provided and many of my library problems answered in the last four days during the Workshop for Librarians of Small Public Libraries.

The faculty members were most sympathetic and helpful in presenting the information which was geared to the needs of the small library.

The informal manner in which the workshop was conducted made us feel free to ask questions and receive help in individual problems. The book lists, cataloging hints and printed suggestions will prove invaluable to me.

The short session on summer reading courses helped me to clarify my thinking along that line.

At this time I cannot think of a single suggestion of how the workshop could be improved in any way.

The I.U. Medical Center Student Union was a well-chosen location for the workshop, as we were in close association with each other and the faculty for the full time.—Mrs. Edith Miller, Linden Public Library.

The objectives of the Workshop were very well carried out and efficiently presented. In the presentation of reference books useful in small public libraries by Dr. Mildred H. Lowell, the librarians profited by actual participation in the use of the various reference materials.

Miss Maysel C. Baker gave very valuable information on simplified cataloging, classification, explanation of the use of library tools, and short cuts for which every librarian of small libraries is grateful, as time is at a premium when she is, among other things, the janitor.

Suggestions for book talks and use of tape recordings presented ideas on how to reach the people of the community and interest them in the library.

Juvenile and adult book selection aids given by Miss Margaret Sheviak and Dr. Mildred H. Lowell were very well presented.

CURRENT ADDITIONS FOR AN INDIANA COLLECTION

Some Books and Pamphlets about Indiana or by Hoosier Authors,
Compiled by Hazel W. Hopper, Indiana Division, State Library

ANTONACCI, ROBERT J. and Barr, Jene.

Basketball for Young Champions.

Illustrated by Richard Leach. 1960.

160p. Whittlesey House, $2.95.

This is a handbook for the young basketball player, giving a history of the game and a discussion of the rules and of the different plays. Mr. Antonacci is supervisor of health, physical education and safety for the Gary public schools. Ages 8-12.

DALEY, ARTHUR. Knute Rockne, Football Wizard of Notre Dame. Illustrated with photographs. 1960.

191p. Kenedy, $2.50.

The story of Notre Dame's famous coach is told for boys by a noted sportswriter for the New York Times. The book is an American Background Book, a series made up of books on the lives of Catholic heroes and heroines in American history. Ages 10-15.

DE REGNIERS, BEATRICE SCHENK. Shadow Book. Photographs by Isabel Gordon. 1960. Harcourt, $2.95.

This delightful little picture book shows many things a child and his shadow can do together. A wealth of fun for children is suggested by the author. Ages 4-8.

DODD, EDWARD H., JR. Of Nature, Time and Teale. 1960. 63p. Dodd, $3.00.

Indiana's claims to Edwin Way Teale are that as a boy he spent his summers at his grandfather's farm in the Indiana dune country and that he attended Earlham College. It was through his adventures at the Lone Oak Farm in the Indiana dunes that he first became interested in the study of nature. Mr. Dodd has written an interesting biography of Teale.

ELSEN, ALBERT E. Rodin's Gates of Hell. 1960. 160p. University of Minnesota, $7.50.

In spite of Rodin's fame, the meaning of his most important piece of sculpture, the Gates of Hell, remains somewhat of a mystery. The author presents a study of the work, telling about the evolution and meaning of the Gates, the sculptor's source of inspiration, and the concept and execution of the work. Rodin was commissioned to do the project in 1880 and worked at it intermittently for the rest of his life. He had not completed it when he died in 1917. Mr. Elsen is an associate professor of art history at Indiana University.

FARLEY, EDWARD. The Transcendence of God. 1958. 225p. Westminster, $5.00.

This is a study in contemporary philosophical theology, discussing, at length, the theme that dominates the current revolution in Christian philosophy. The author is assistant professor of philosophy and religion at DePauw.

FULTON, ALBERT R. Motion Pictures. The Development of an Art from Silent Films to the Age of Television. 1960. 320p. University of Oklahoma, $5.00.

In this study Mr. Fulton "traces the development of the motion picture as an art, with particular attention to the roles of technique using as a framework the historical background of the industry and the achievements of important directors." The author explains and analyzes the methods used in making films by discussing certain films and their importance to the art of motion pictures. Dr. Fulton is associate professor of English at Purdue.

GOODMAN, ELLIOTT R. Soviet Design for a World State. With a foreword by Philip C. Mosely. (Studies of the Russian Institute, Columbia University) 1960. 512p. Columbia University, $6.75.

The aims of this book as stated by the author are, first, "to reduce to concrete terms the meanings concealed in the commonly repeated but seldom examined cliches about Soviet purposes and goals. The second basic aim is to question the adequacy of the existing pattern of interstate relations in the non-Soviet world when viewed in the light of the concrete Soviet plan for the future." Some of the subjects discussed are Marx and Engels on the world state, the meaning of peaceful coexistence, world state and world language, the role of war in building the Soviet world state, Soviet reaction to supranational plans from the non-Soviet world. The final chapter is called "The Response of the West," and in it the author suggests certain steps which might be taken by the West in the fight to preserve the precious freedoms of Western civilization. The author formerly lived in Indianapolis but is now associate professor of political science at Brown University.

HANCOCK, RALPH. Puerto Rico. A Success Story. 1960. 187p. Van Nostrand, $4.75.

Twenty years ago the island of Puerto Rico was called the poorhouse of the Caribbean. It was one of the most poverty-stricken, disease-ridden countries in the world. Today, largely through the efforts of the Puerto Ricans themselves, the per capita income is closely approaching that of a number of the states in the United States. The island is now a healthy place in which to live. Many low-cost homes have been built and the schools are adequate. Ralph Hancock tells the story of this economic and social improvement. He was for many years a resident news correspondent, and he knew the conditions in the island twenty years ago. Recent visits to Puerto Rico and interviews with many of the natives have given him a picture of the Puerto Rico of today. Mr. Hancock was born in Plainville.

HAVIGHURST, WALTER, Editor. Land of the Long Horizons. (American Vista Series: the Midwest) Edited with introduction and commentary by Walter Havighurst, 1960. 437p. Coward, $12.50.

Mr. Havighurst has brought together vivid selections from the narratives of French missionaries and discoverers, records of explorers and traders, notes and journals of surveyors and river captains, accounts of frontier travelers and the writings of distinguished historians which tell the story of the founding and growth of the Middle West.

Many illustrations of historical events and places in this section of the country, some of them reproduced from contemporary drawings, make the volume also valuable as a pictorial history.

HENDRICKSON, WALTER, JR. Handbook for Space Travelers. Illustrated by Jack Russell. 1959. 256p. Bobbs, $3.95.

This book gives a variety of basic information for space fans. Such subjects are discussed as tools of space explorers, history of rockets, rocket bases, future of rockets, and where to go in space. The author was born in Indianapolis. He is a member of the American Rocket Society, is a contributor to Space Age, and has his own weekly column on "Rockets and Space" for young people in the Jacksonville, Illinois, Journal-Courier. Ages 12-up.

Indiana. 1960. 7p. International Visual Educational Services, Inc. Chicago, 10 cents.

This little pamphlet gives brief facts about Indiana, such as area, terrain, important rivers, natural resources, climate, transportation, manufacturing, and agriculture and mining. There is also a short history of the state.

Indiana-Adjutant General. Indiana in the War of the Rebellion. Report of the Adjutant General. (A reprint of Volume I of the Eight Volume report prepared by W.H.H. Terrell and published in 1869). 1960. 603p. Indiana Historical Society, $2.50.

The report of Adjutant General Terrell is an important historical document which throws much light on Indiana's participation in the War. Such topics are discussed as the draft, bounties, recruiting, Morgan's raid, the efforts of Morton to combat disloyalty in the state, and Camp Morton—the rebel prison at Indianapolis. The volume was also issued as Volume XLI of the Indiana Historical Collections published by the Indiana Historical Bureau.

KENWORTHY, LEONARD S. Profile of Nigeria. 1960. 96p. Doubleday, $2.50.

Nigeria gained its independence in October, 1960, but even a casual visitor to the country can see that the people have a long way to go before they give up their tribal loyalties to become a unified nation. This book is the result of a recent tour of Nigeria by Mr. Kenworthy, where he interviewed the leaders of the country and visited the Nigerians in their homes. Well-chosen photographs illustrate the book. The author was born in Richmond and was graduated from Earlham College. He is now professor of education at Brooklyn College.

LAIRD, DONALD A. and LAIRD, ELEANOR C. Techniques for Efficient Remembering. 1960. 187p. McGraw, $3.95.

Dr. and Mrs. Laird write that "the aim of this book is to build some bridges which will connect the general reader with the research findings on remembering and learning . . . to boil this research down into a few general rules which provide guidance for self-improvement on remembering." The authors live at Lafayette.

LAMBERT, JANET. Spring Fever. 1960. 178p. Dutton, $2.95.

Ginger Johnson, Patty Palmer and "Spark Plug" Blake were introduced to readers in Mrs. Lambert's book, We're Going Steady, and again in Boy Wanted. Here, again, we find the three friends in an interesting summer adventure. Ages 12-16.

McELFRESH, ADELINE. (Elizabeth Wesley, pseud.) Doctor Dee. 1960. 221p. Avalon, $2.95.

Dr. Dee Bailey returned to her home town of Still River, Indiana, to become anesthesiologist at General Hospital. The story involves the nurse anesthetist who was demoted when Dr. Dee came to the hospital, Dr. Arn Thurston and Phil Roscoe, a newcomer whose arrival in Still River caused much speculation among the townfolks. Tom Norman, editor of the Still River News, also plays an important part in the story. Age 12 and up.

MASON, MIRIAM E. Becky and Her Brave Cat, Bluegrass. Illustrated by Robert MacLean. 1960. 135p. Macmillan, $2.75.

Becky, Daniel Boone's youngest daughter, and her brave cat, Bluegrass, traveled with the other members of the Boone family from their home in North Carolina to settle in the beautiful woods of "Caintuck." This is a story of pioneer life and of the hardships experienced by the Boone family and the little band of settlers on their journey and upon arrival in Kentucky. Ages 8-12.

NETTL, BRUNO. Introduction to Folk Music in the United States. (Wayne State University Studies) 1960. 122p. Wayne State University, Paper, $2.50.

The author has outlined the general characteristics of folk and primitive music and their social environment. He discusses the ethnic background of American music, Indian music, the British tradition, folk music of the immigrants from Europe and Africa, folk music in the metropolis, the professional folk singer and how to collect and study folk music. Dr. Nettl has taught musicology at Indiana University and Wayne State University, Detroit.

NOLAN, ALAN T. The Iron Brigade. A Military History. 1961. 412p. Macmillan, $6.95.

The Iron Brigade of the Civil War was made up of the 2nd, 6th and 7th Wisconsin Volunteer Regiments and the 19th Indiana Regiment. It was a part of the Army of the Potomac and saw action at the second battle of Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, and led all Union brigades in the percentage of deaths from battle.

Early in the War the brigade adopted the hard black dress hat of the regular army and one officer described the men thus: "They looked like giants in their tall black hats . . . and giants they were in action."

Alan Nolan, Indianapolis lawyer and Civil War student, has told the story of the brigade for the first time in its entirety, using documents, regimental histories and official records for his sources. The author is the son of Mrs. Jeannette C. Nolan, popular Indiana author.

QUIRK, ROBERT E. Mexican Revolution, 1914-1915. 1960. 325p. Indiana University, $6.75.

The period covered in this study of Mexican history is a complex and highly significant one. In this book on the revolution, 1914-15, the author discusses the political rivals, the battles, debates, revolutionary movements within Mexico, as well as the role played by the United States, especially President Woodrow Wilson, in this period of Mexican history. The author is in the department of history, Indiana University.

ROBERTS, BESSIE KEERAN. Fort Wayne's Family Album. 1960. 185p. Cummins Printing Co., Fort Wayne, $3.95.

This is a collection of contemporary and firsthand accounts of early settlers of Fort Wayne and their descendants. Throughout the years, Mrs. Roberts interviewed many early settlers and incorporated their reminiscences in her book. Some of them had arrived as children in the young village and told stories of business, political meetings and social life in the community. The book is especially valuable for the picture it gives of pioneer life in northern Indiana. Anecdotes in connection with the building of the Wabash and Erie canal and the Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne Railroad are told in the biographical sketches of Jesse L. Williams and Jesse R. Straughan.

Mrs. Roberts' family has been in Indiana for six generations. She has done considerable research and writing in the field of local history.

STEVENSON, AUGUSTA. Francis Scott Key. Maryland Boy. Illustrated by Gray Morrow. (Childhood of famous Americans Series) 1960. 192p. Bobbs, $1.95.

This is Miss Stevenson's twenty-fifth book in this popular series. Her Abe Lincoln. Frontier Boy, published in 1932, was the first book of Bobbs-Merrill's Childhood of Famous Americans Series. Since then she has written books about many other American heroes and heroines. Ages 7 and up.

SWIGGETT, GLEN LEVIN. Famous Women: Sacred and Profane. 1960. 158p. University of the South, $4.00.

This book of 150 sonnets deals with women who have become famous in history. The author was born in Cambridge City and has been on the faculties at the University of Michigan, Purdue, Swarthmore, University of Missouri, University of the South and Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

U.S. Census. Final Population Counts. Indiana. (Advance Reports) November 30, 1960. 18p. Bureau of Census, 15 cents.

Included in this report are the final 1960 population statistics on number of inhabitants of the state and its counties and minor civil divisions, and incorporated and unincorporated places. The report also gives rural and urban population figures for the state and for counties of Indiana.

WALLACE, FRANCIS. Knute Rockne. 1960. 286p. Doubleday, $3.95.

This story of Knute Rockne and Notre Dame football was written by one who knew Rockne well. Francis Wallace was a student at Notre Dame from 1919 to 1923 and for three years was official newspaper correspondent at the University. Mr. Wallace has written several other books about Notre Dame and about Notre Dame football teams.

WALLER, GEORGE M. Samuel Vetch, Colonial Enterpriser. 1960. 311p. University of North Carolina, $6.00.

Samuel Vetch was a Scotsman who came to America in 1699. Soon after his arrival he became engaged in Indian trade and in maritime commerce, and in 1709 as Queen Anne's leader he formulated a plan to expel the French from North America. Due to the lack of promised aid from the British, the plan did not succeed in 1709, but with help arriving late in 1710 Arcadia (later Nova Scotia) was taken for the British Crown. Vetch subsequently died in England, a prisoner in the King's Bench for debt. The author is professor and head of the department of history and political science at Butler University.

WEALES, GERALD. Tale for the Bluebird.

1960. 244p. Harcourt, $3.95.

The theme of this novel centers around the search for a mysterious ornamental box which takes Connie Firth, the narrator-hero, all the way across the United States. The missing box represents something different and vital to each of the characters, and, with the revelation of its secret, each one who sought it finds out something important about his life and desires. The author was born at Connorsville and is now associate professor of English at the University of Pennsylvania.

WHALEN, WILLIAM J. Christian Family Finance. Illustrated by Moroni St.

John. 1960. 157p. Bruce, $2.95.

"The Christian families, with more children than their secular neighbors, higher education expenses, greater charitable obligations and a different set of family goals and values will not find the answers to their special problems in financial guides which seek only to explain how to keep up with the Joneses." This book is a comprehensive financial guide for those Christian families whose annual income falls within the $5,000 to $12,000 bracket. The author is assistant professor of English at Purdue.

This is the story of Frances Slocum. The book also includes information about the Miami Indian tribe in Indiana.

(3) that future Workshops be devoted to one subject and be scheduled for two days because it would be easier for librarians to get away for a shorter period.

They voted for the next Workshop to be devoted to reference books and to be held in the Student Union Building, Indiana University, Bloomington, so that the participants could utilize the facilities of the Division of Library Science Library as well as the main University Library and its eleven branches. The following dates for the next Workshop have been scheduled with the I.U. Conference Bureau—Monday and Tuesday, January 22-23, 1962.

"WHAT I GAINED . . ."

The change in the room the second day was welcomed as the use of tables and their arrangement was much more convenient.

The meetings were so very interesting that the ten minute break was dispensed with several times. I feel that it should be taken even if, at the time, you do not realize it is needed.

I feel that the meeting was very beneficial and would like to see one held again next year. —Mrs. Vivian M. Myers, Francesville-Salem Township Library.

Children's Librarians Schedule Workshop

The ILA Children and Young People's Round Table and the I.U. Division of Library Science will sponsor a work conference on May 8 and 9 in the I.U. Memorial Union, Bloomington. The subject of the conference will be "Book Selection: How and What."

The registration fee of $2.50 and the $2 for the dinner should be paid in advance. Send checks by April 15 to Mrs. Barbara Francis, Bloomington Public Library.
